Retired Women Teachers of Ontario

Organisation des enseignantes retraitées de l'Ontario

October 2018

INTRODUCTION

The Constitution is the basic governing document of the Retired Women Teachers of Ontario / Organisation des enseignantes retraitées de l'Ontario. Policies provide a guideline for future action. They are stated in general terms and imply an intention. They clarify what the Board of Directors hopes to accomplish and how the Board wishes the organization to act. All policies must comply with the Constitution.

Policies are guidelines which assist the Board in making decisions. The Board has the authority to make policy, the obligation to see that policies are followed, and the responsibility to approve exceptions to policy. Only the Board has the authority to determine policy.

Policy answers the following questions:

How will the Board organize and direct the work of the organization?

What structure will be used to do this?

Employees and Board members must follow the established policy of the organization.

Procedures are the specific detailed steps for carrying out the policies of the organization. Procedures are developed for repeated and consistent application in day-to-day operations. They are based on policy and ensure that all operations are consistent with established policy.

The process of developing policies and procedures involves the policy makers, the Board, and those who must implement them, staff and members of the Board.

Decisions about policies and procedures are recorded in the minutes of meetings at which they are made. This Manual compiles those decisions in a document which is easy for all members to use, and which can be updated regularly. Policies are cross-referenced to relevant articles of the Constitution to enable users to easily locate all information available about a particular topic in the document.

- b. Members entitled to submit a claim for accommodations are expected to share a room with at least one other member. If a member travels with a spouse or other guest, RWTO/OERO shall pay for only one-half of the total for the contracted room rate plus associated taxes. Only the room costs shall be reimbursed, i.e. no reimbursement for personal discretionary expenses such as entertainment, long distance, laundry, internet, etc. Members shall be reimbursed based on the double-occupancy rates at the designated hotel(s).
